REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

It is always pleasant to report progress in a good cause. This we can do of our schools since the last report was given to the town, in spite of the hard, distressing times. Experience is proving most effectually that the town system has great advantage over that of the district method. Its tendency is to educate equally all the children and youths throughout the town. Within the last few years, striking advancement has been made in this direction. There is nothing of that disparity now, as formerly, between the children living in the village and those out of it. All who will can now have the same number of weeks' schooling. This tends to level up society, helping all to enjoy an equality of the good things in life.

Perhaps the rates of mileage for those pupils living more than a mile and a half from school are not settled yet upon just the right basis. It should be the aim of all citizens to have this matter fairly adjusted. The rule governing us should be, "Doing unto others as we would they should do unto us," in like circumstances.

While there has not been the past year any contagious disease prevailing, nevertheless, there has been more sickness than usual, keeping children from school, so as to reduce the average attendance considerably below par. Though this is to be deeply regretted, yet we can submit to such a providential visitation with grace. However, when absences have been occasioned by truancy, or by being kept at home for either work or play, we can but feel that here is a moral wrong and a direct violation of the statutory law; and worst of all it is depriving the young of that culture which can never be made up. In this light, keeping children from school when they might and should be there, is committing a great sin which cannot be atoned for. God gives parents children that they, according to their best ability, may see that their minds are duly awakened, trained and enlightened. Any thing short of this lowers the standard of manhood and womanhood.

Through absences a large per cent. of our school money has been lost. Let parents and guardians think of this subject and realize most forcibly the obligations resting upon them to educate their children, and then they will be less likely to keep them from school. If children are out of their recitations even for a day, this is almost certain to embarrass them, causing them to lose rank, and by this means the whole school is more or less disarranged.

If parents who are wont to keep their children at home for insufficient causes, would only visit our schools and see for themselves how the pupils attending regularly are sure to stand the highest in their studies, they would, it seems to us, be less given to keeping or allowing their children to remain out of school.

The records show that during the current year there have been a good number of parental visits to our schools, and it is a notable fact that, as a rule, the children of those parents who have taken time to do this, have the best standing in scholarship. When the interest at home is such as to cause parents to have a special oversight, as to what and how their children are doing and getting on in their school affairs, and so occasionally looking in upon them in the schoolroom, their children will be very likely to grow in knowledge and strive for the best things in life.

What housewife would employ a woman to have charge of her dairy and would fail to visit the dairy-room for months, or even a year? Or what farmer would turn his stock off to pasture and neglect to go near them to salt or care for them during a whole summer? Yet we often put our children under the charge of strangers and neglect to visit them for years. What a mistake is made here! By such a course what an injury is often done to the young! Is it not placing the material above the mental and spiritual? Parents are directly and indirectly shaping the destiny of their children. It remains largely with them to say whether they shall become like the Hottentot or the enlightened christian, like Thunderbolt, or Washington. Opportunities lost can never be regained.

The discipline generally in our schools has been good. The pupils for the most part have entered our schools to govern themselves. This is as it should be. The idea of boys and girls past ten years old going into school to be insubordinate, or to violate the rules which are essential to protect the faithful students, giving them the privilege of advancing as fast as possible, is preposterous in the extreme. The age of the ferule and the rawhide is past; these belong to barbarism, not civilization. The time has arrived when we should place all children above the primary grade on their honor and good behavior, as they come into the school, letting them feel and know that if they live up to the regulations, they can remain therein and fare as all good scholars do, but if their conduct falls below a certain standard, they then shut themselves out of school. Of course, while they are going down, they must be labored with by teacher and school board, and, when in spite of these moral and strenuous efforts, they persist in the wrong, it is the duty of the school board to debar all such from being in the school, for the protection of the loyal and faithful. Really, when we come to look at this matter in its true light, we plainly see that it is the bounden duty of parents to send their children to school to behave and to be taught. The legitimate work of the teacher is to teach, the same as it is the true mission of the preacher to preach; neither should be required to govern in the way of physical discipline. This duty belongs to parents and the police force. Let parents send their children to school for the sake of learning and gaining knowledge, not merely to get rid of them, and seldom will they make any disturbance. Especially should this be the treatment of the older students, for their example has a decided influence upon the younger pupils; it should always be for the right, and, therefore, worthy of imitation. No school should have any regulations which cannot be easily lived up to and suited to its highest welfare, and all who will not live up to these, should not have the privilege of treading them underfoot.

A very few of our students have not made the progress they should and would, if they had not been out so much evenings, especially loitering about public places, really to the inconvenience and discomfiture of proprietors. It is passing strange that parents and guardians will permit their children to be out evenings and they know naught as to where they are, or what they are doing. Many youths have been ruined by such neglect and want of good judgment. In this way bad habits are inevitably formed, and as the dissipated go into the school, they are likely to be reckless and wholly unfitted for thorough school work and, accordingly, they fail in recitations, and are prone to disorder and often to open rebellion against teacher and the wholesome rules of the school. Such are inclined to be uncivil among the scholars, impolite to their superiors. The general bearing of such on the street, in the office or store, is defiant, and when they enter hall or church it is not for the purpose of getting good, but having a hilarious time at the expense of disturbing or breaking up the meetings. It is hoped that hereafter, there will not be seen or known any girl or boy playing loose, or loitering about any office, store or shop in our town. Should parents allow this to be, we will be certain to have a supply of fast young people which we should not have and will not have, if parents fulfil their christian obligations.

We sincerely believe in young people having seasons of innocent amusement and even merriment. But this does not imply waste of time, looseness of conduct, yielding to temptation, or being intemperate in word or deed. It signifies forming habits which will prove to be real friends, yes, caring properly for mind and body. Now true students find it, not only essential to improve the regular school hours, but also the spare seasons, in reading and thinking. They find delight in acquainting themselves with history and the lives of noble characters. They gather from the past into the present, in order to make a golden future.

Our young people are highly favored in having a choice library to which all can have access. It has already accomplished inexpressible good, and it is hoped it will be so used as to bring forth greater and better results; and it will if our young people cultivate and grow a taste for the best literature. If they make the most possible out of their school days they will have a taste only for the best reading.

It is gratifying that a club has been formed in our village outside the school to help forward to such an end. This should be hailed with gladness; for it does not interfere with the regular school work, but enhances it, stimulating the mind to seek and know in all branches pursued. Naught else thrills and refreshes young minds like consciousness of real advancement in knowledge. It is encouraging and hopeful that we have many young women and men who are true students.

During the year we have been under the necessity of changing teachers, much to the regret of many parents and the school board. To lose a superior teacher from a school is a great misfortune, and such has been the experience of our grammar and high school, and school No. 1. It is no easy matter to replace a first-class teacher. We have reason to be lastingly grateful for the noble work these teachers achieved, and, especially, to her who wrought so long and so faithfully at the head of No. 2 school.

We have been fortunate, indeed, in retaining several teachers who have been with us for years and proved themselves among the very best; and the new teachers called to fill the places made vacant, have already given proof that they are equal to their charge, apt and well qualified to teach and fully consecrated to their high calling.

The science of teaching at present is far in advance of what it was in the old district school with its reading, spelling, writing, arithmetic, geography and grammar, with its perpetual beginning at the same place and going over the same ground year after year. Then there was little system, being about as many classes as there were scholars. This was the end of education ; to obtain just enough knowledge to enable one to get on fairly well in the world. But now how different is the object. It is not simply to secure just enough information to deal successfully with dollars and cents. Very truly, at present, it includes economy and vastly more. It consists in acquainting one with the world in which he lives, so that he may think aright of stone, plant, animal and star ; may master the principles of the so-called common branches, and become at least interested in the elements of geology, botany, chemistry, physics, agriculture, astronomy, literature and moral science. So pedagogy today is significant. While it is not required to create, it is expected to help develop the whole mind and body of the child. It is to put the youth in possession of himself, so he will delight to think of God, comprehend and practice his duties to man, and keep himself advancing all the while into more truth and knowledge. Such a work is exalted. Then to be a real teacher is no insignificant thing ; and true teachers we must have in order to lead the young upward into the light where they may shine as ornaments in the sight of God and man.

We should put ourselves in the way to know our true teachers, staying their hands and co-operating with them in developing and training our youths to do their best and always be at their best.

From increase of scholars, we have been forced to enlarge No. 1 schoolhouse. Ten feet were added to the front, thereby affording a good clothiery and increased seating capacity sufficient to meet, it would appear, all present and prospect demands. The house is now commodious and convenient.

The growth of the school in No. 3 has made it necessary to provide more room there, and now an addition of twelve feet is being put upon the rear of that building, which will afford sittings for eighteen more pupils. A woodshed was erected in the fall by this schoolhouse. When the present work shall be completed, this school will have ample and pleasant accommodations.

The three lower grades of No. 2 school are overcrowded. All who examine the needs must see that the time is close at hand when in some way more room must be furnished them. It would seem to be the most practical, and certainly in the long run by far the cheapest, to erect in a central location to accommodate the town, a high school building which would meet the wants of the high school grades and the advanced grammar school. This is a subject which concerns the whole town, and should soon be so adjusted as to serve the highest interest of all.

Those who do not visit the schools so as to see their actual requirements, can but be poorly prepared to judge of the real wants, and therefore, be ready to act intelligently for their best interest. It is true today, as are the parents so will be the children; as are the teachers, so will be the schools; and as are the schools so will be the town. So to have a banner town; we must have a high order of schools, and to have these, we must have good school supplies and conveniences.

The greatest Teacher said, "It is not the will of your Father which is in heaven that one of these little ones shall perish." It is our duty then to live for the young, to consecrate our mind, might and strength to their proper education. Then shall we do a more lasting and nobler work than did Phidias in cutting out exquisite statues from the rough marble; than Raphael painting unequaled Madonnas upon the canvas. Their work was for time, ours will be for eternity. In this way we shall express fervent gratitude to that Pilgrim band who, standing by the cradle of our republic, founded the common school, that all her sons and daughters might receive a practical and useful education.

SCHOOL NO. 1.

First term of the year was taught by Miss Mary H. Smith, who worked the school up to a high grade. The other terms have been under the charge of Miss Mary D. Russell, a graduate of Salem Normal School, and a teacher of considerable experience. She has wrought faithfully and achieved noble results. She has kept a good school. Whole number of pupils, 48; average daily attendance, 32; number of visits by committee, 17; and by others, 73.

SCHOOL NO. 2.

HIGH AND FIRST GRAMMAR GRADES.

First term was taught by Miss Fredrietta T. Hill, a teacher of genius and rare attainments, who accomplished a grand and lasting work for our schools. The other terms have been taught by Miss Viola E. McClure, who came to us highly recommended by the best school authority as a woman of fine ability, sustaining a good christian character, having had much successful experience as a teacher. Thus far she has been quite successful, perhaps, as much so as we could reasonably expect under the circumstances. She is devoted to her school and loves to teach. Whole number of scholars, 35; average attendance, 26; number of visits by school board, 62; and by others, 81.

SECOND GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

First term was taught by Miss Mary E. Richardson, who was a very faithful teacher. The second term was under the charge of Miss Jennie B. Callahan, who excelled as a disciplinarian. The third term has been in charge of Miss Lillian S. Kimball, who is excellent to govern and apt to teach. This school under her scholarship, experience and love of teaching, promises much in the future. Whole number of students, 56; daily average attendance, 36; number of visits by the committee, 58; and by others, 63.

SECONDARY SCHOOL.

Taught by Miss Etta A. Sawyer, who has been in charge of the school for some six years, doing in all regards earnest and excellent work. Whole number of students, 70; daily average attendance, 49; number of visits by committee, 43; and by others, 130.

FIRST AND SECOND PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

These have been under the supervision of Miss Elizabeth E. Randall, who has been in charge of the same for years. She knows just how to train little children. Her enthusiasm, peculiar discipline, love for doing good and fine culture, fit her in an eminent degree to have charge of children. Though she has throngs of them in her room, still she manages to keep them wide awake and learning all the while something new and good. Miss Randall has had charge of the singing in all our schools. Her labors in this respect have been of great value to our schools. Whole number of pupils, 102; average daily attendance, 62; number of visits by the committee, 25; and by others, 78.

SCHOOL NO. 3.

Taught by Miss Mary F. Kauffman, the first term, with good success. The last two terms have been under the charge of Miss Mabel Holt, who has made a decided improvement in the school. At the recent close, all present felt to say that they never had seen the school in any better condition. The class work was direct and systematic, and the discipline of a high order. This certainly has been one of our best schools. Whole number of pupils, 45; average daily attendance, 32; whole number of visits by committee, 15; and by others, 83.

SCHOOL NO. 4.

Teacher, Miss Ellen Taft, who has been in the school for nearly two years. Under her tuition the school has done a deal of mental work. While this has been the smallest school as to numbers, it indeed has been large in many regards. The classes have been numerous because the studies extended from the primary through the grammar school. However, the scholars have acquitted themselves, when the committee has been present, with credit to teacher and school. The pupils have all seemed to be well disposed and bound to advance in knowledge. Many of them stand high in their studies and demeanor. Some of them have really conquered Colburn's arithmetic. Whole number of pupils, 24; average daily attendance, 17; number of visits by the committee, 11; and by others, 67.
